

Shorty runs into Teebo!

Dear PETEY:

Checked up our old dormitory pal "Snapper" Teebo this morning waiting on an appointment down Peachtree St. "Snap" wanted to know a bookfull about my visit to the Camel factories. "Tell us old apple seed," says "Snapper," "you're on the inside!" "Snap" still has that mighty annoying way of saying, "But that doesn't surprise me."

Anyhow—when I explained about the millions of Camels R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. made daily what does the old bird sputter but: "Why, Shorty, they'd have to make that many to supply the demand! Camels have the quality smokers want! And, they have the most wonderful mellow mild body and the most refreshing flavor ever created in a cigarette! Of course they make Camels by millions; of course they buy enough revenue stamps from Uncle Sam every day to build a duplicate of the Winston-Salem post office! Why not? Smokers everywhere will have Camels!"

But, "Snap" finally got to spilling some real nobby Camel selling stuff! "Shorty," says he, "I want to put it on record that in all the times I've pulled Camels out of my pocket to supply somebody's shortage I've heard enough good things said about 'em to fill a volume! That's my brand! Camels are a wonderful cigarette. 'Like getting money from home,' etc."

"And, Shorty, what's the answer? Why—Camels blend of choice Turkish and choice domestic tobaccos meets the universal taste! And that's the 'hole' story, old golf ball!"

Pete, you pet photograph, did you ever hear a better record?

Sincerely,

Atlanta, Wednesday

SURPRISE VISIT PAID WOOLLEY

Former Chairman of Republican Central Committee Honored Last Night

Approximately fifty Republicans, including many candidates who were victorious during the recent election, participated in a "surprise" visit last night upon Arthur Woolley, former chairman of the Republican central committee of Weber county, and with gifts and talks expressed their appreciation for the efficient work done by the chairman during the campaign.

Not an inkling of the "surprise" had reached Mr. Woolley when the Republicans filed into the Virginia apartments, where Mr. and Mrs. Woolley reside. The visitors were seated in a circle in the apartment and then Mr. Woolley was suddenly pushed through the door to face his guests.

Fred Meisner acted as spokesman for the visitors and with eloquent words, in which he paid high tribute to the services performed by Mr. Woolley, presented the chairman with three packages. The first contained a solid gold watch, engraved with an appropriate inscription, with a chain and a gold case for an Elks membership card. The second package contained a wallet, from which the edges of a number of bank notes protruded, and also a list of names of the persons who had donated the gifts.

The third package contained cigars, which Mr. Meisner explained, should be opened immediately. This was done and everyone present, with the exception of the women, of course, turned the affair into a smoker.

Mr. Woolley responded to Mr. Meisner's talk and refused to accept the credit for the great success of the party at the polls. He declared the combined efforts of all those who worked in the campaign should have the credit for the victory.

The party disbanded after a general gab-fest in which the activities of the campaign were trotted out and given an airing. Until the end of the party Mr. Woolley had not looked into the wallet and the actual contents remain a mystery.

LEGION COUNTS SICK VETERANS

Good Cheer for Patients Aim of Movement Started This Week

NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Work was started today by the 9700 posts of the American Legion in this country, as a census of all veterans of the world war who are still inmates of government and private hospitals. The census is the first step of the legion in a campaign to make life more worth living for the sick and disabled.

A card will be made out for every man in hospitals, giving information of his name, home address and organization with which he served. The data will be obtained by committees from all legion posts and the cards filed at a national headquarters in Indianapolis. "The index will be accessible to anyone wishing to locate a sick or wounded man."

Under the legion plan, every man in hospital will be visited at least once a week. Outings and entertainments will be organized, delicacies and reading matter will be supplied and every man will be made to feel that a personal interest is being taken in his case. The spirit of the plan is to humanize hospitalization work. Every one in the community will be asked to help, but the legion will lead the way.

There are still more than 20,000 disabled and sick veterans confined in about 1200 government and private hospitals.

SH-H-H-H! DOUG MAC-LEAN, "THE JAILBIRD" STAR WAS JAILED ONCE

Paramount Favorite Arrested For Speeding Spends Night In a Prison Cell

Douglas MacLean, who is starred in the Ince-Paramount picture, "The Jailbird," which will be shown at the Alhambra theatre today and until Saturday, didn't have to make any special trips to penitentiaries for local color because sh-h-h-h! he has been a real jailbird himself, and has done time behind prison bars.

Don't get the impression that he's a criminal on that account. A certain town not far from Doug's home has a solid little jail, an efficient police force, a calloused old judge and strict speed laws. Heading for home from a week-end house party one Sunday evening, and in a hurry to get there, Doug whizzed through the town, shattered all the speed laws, stirred up all of the police force, and was picked up by a motorcycle cop who led him back to town and the judge.

Doug's speed was twice what the law allowed, the judge's remarks were extremely caustic, and the bail demanded was $100, checks not considered. Doug didn't have a hundred in cash with him, and all of his friends were miles away. Efforts to raise friends over the telephone produced no results, so Doug spent his first night behind prison bars.

Now he carefully watches the speedometer and also maintains that his work in "The Jailbird" is twice as good as it would have been if he hadn't done time himself. Doris May, formerly his co-star in Ince-Paramount productions, is his leading woman in this photo comedy.

COOPERATIVE DRIVE TO SUPPRESS SHOPLIFTING BEGUN; ALL NAMES OF THOSE CAUGHT TO BE PUBLIC

Rough sailing looms ahead for shoplifters in Ogden, professional and amateur alike, with the inauguration today of an intensive pre-holiday campaign by the Ogden Chamber of Commerce, through the credit rating bureau of which Miss M. Stewart is head.

Special policemen, appointed by the Ogden police department, civilian watchers, wide publicity and vigorous prosecution will form the chief stimulating blocks for those who "lift" from the store counters during the coming holiday season, according to the plans.

The coming of the holiday crowds each year, the merchants say, bring with them the quota of professional and amateur shoplifters. The intent is to pick up something from the store counter and walk away with it is prevalent in all periods of the year, but with the coming of the pre-holiday rush, the disease becomes more intense and results in the loss of thousands of dollars worth of merchandise, they say.

The time has arrived in Ogden where a halt must come in this illicit practice," Miss Stewart said. "The merchants and the police have decided it must end and we believe the solution will be found in the campaign which is to open today."

J. Ray Ward, commissioner of public safety, declared this morning that the police department will co-operate with the merchants and every effort will be made in his power to not only discover the thieves, but to prosecute them to the full extent of the law, following their arrest.

Commissioner Ward said he would appoint policemen with full power, and these women will not only take an active part in policing the stores and aid in picking up the guilty ones, but they will also play a prominent part in the rigid prosecution which will follow in court.

The true name of every person booked on the police blotter, who is caught in the act of shoplifting, will be made public, Commissioner Ward said, and every effort will be made to assure that the true name of the guilty one may be determined. "It is part of our system," Commissioner Ward said, "to demand that the person arrested, be booked under his or her proper name, and this will be determined, even if it is necessary to send an officer to investigate."

VIGOROUS PROSECUTION
The keynote of the campaign, as outlined, will be in the vigorous prosecution which will follow arrests. Legislation will be thrust aside and the amateur as well as the professional will be compelled to face the court and pay the penalty provided by law. It is not the thought of the merchants to step in and ask dismissal of the case for the reason that the guilty party has made good the loss, according to the plans outlined.

The newspapers are asked to play a part in the campaign by publishing the name, address and other details about the person arrested for shoplifting. The press to be given complete facts in each case where arrests are made and are requested to follow the case until its final disposition by the court.

Close watching in the stores will mark the first step in the campaign, according to the plans, and the policemen are to be immediately appointed for this purpose. Other steps are to be taken which will not be made public as a means of bringing the guilty persons to justice.

Those in charge of the campaign declared today that the drive in Ogden is going to be directed along stern lines and those who are caught in the net cannot expect that leniency in the slightest degree can be given.
